

About this site

This is the website for the National Association of People Living with HIV/AIDS, Australia's peak body representing HIV-positive people. This is a site for people living with HIV/AIDS, their friends, carers and families, and for HIV-related service providers and advocates.

Accuracy and currency

NAPWA makes every reasonable effort to ensure the information on this website is accurate, reliable and up-to-date, including obtaining technical reviews by medically-qualified reviewers, however the authors of information on this website are not qualified to give medical advice, except where explicitly stated.

The content of this website is intended to support, not replace, the relationship between people living with HIV/AIDS and their medical advisers, and is not intended as a substitute for medical advice.

All articles on the NAPWA website clearly indicate the date on which they were published, and in some cases may have been superseded by more recent developments. NAPWA strongly urges readers to always seek out the most current information available, especially when making decisions which may affect their health.

NAPWA subscribes to the Health on the Net Foundation Code of Conduct [2] (HONcode) for medical and health websites. Verify here [3].

Images, text and other representations on this site of people or organisations should not be taken to imply anything about the sexuality, HIV status, conduct or personality of those persons or organisations.

Opinions expressed by the authors of material published on the NAPWA website do not represent the official position of NAPWA except where explicitly indicated.

Accessibility

The NAPWA website is designed to be accessible to everyone, regardless of disability, technical ability, English literacy or cultural background. We are working to ensure the site meets standards for accessible design and we welcome feedback from readers.

Access key assignments

Standard access key assignments throughout this site are:

- S – skip over navigation (skip to content)
- M – skip to menu

While this site is designed to be usable regardless of your choice of browser (including text-based browsers and screen readers), for best results we recommend ensuring your web browser is updated to the latest version possible.

If you experience any problems using this website, please contact us [4].

Privacy

NAPWA is committed to protecting your privacy when you visit our website. The site server automatically collects non-personal data such as IP addresses, domain names of sites that referred you (such as search engines), and information about the pages you access. This information is used only for NAPWA's internal statistical analysis.

Cookies are used on this site only to maintain visitor preferences. These contain no identifying information and automatically expire when you close your browser.

We may sometimes ask for information from you, such as your email address if you subscribe to any of our mailing lists. This information will be used only for the purpose of providing you with the services you request, and will never be passed on to third parties without your consent.

External sites

This website contains links to other sites. These links are provided for your information only and do not constitute an endorsement by NAPWA of the content of any external site. Please evaluate the content of external sites carefully.

Document formats

Documents on this website are usually presented as either plain HTML (text) or in Portable Document Format (PDF) files. Software to read PDF documents can be downloaded for free from the Adobe Acrobat Reader [5] website, or other places.

Advertising

Banner advertising on the NAPWA website promotes NAPWA and our partner organisations' programs and services. This website does not host paid commercial advertising.
